

Herald INTERNATIONAL Tribune®

PUBLISHED WITH THE NEW YORK TIMES AND THE WASHINGTON POST

Bologna, Friday, April 30 - Sunday, May 2, 1999

Piling Up Ferraris

The brand new monument to the Ferrari car stands in front of the Imola race track awaiting its inauguration today, at the end of the first qualifying session for next Sunday's Formula One Grand Prix. The five-meter-tall pile of bronze replicas of Ferrari F40 models, created by French sculptor Arman is the first monument ever dedicated to the car itself. Two other memorials were erected to the brand's legendary founder Enzo Ferrari last year in Modena, where he lived, and Maranello, where the factory is, for the centennial of his birth.